

FIELDHOUSE

DRINKS MENU

THE STORY...

Fieldhouse is named after the Field brothers who emigrated to Australia in 1885 from England. The brothers found their niche in the fresh produce market and developed a booming business in this very building in what was the heart of Sydney's trade centre.

The tradition continues...

Our sommelier and restaurant manager have spent many nights arguing over the range in our beverage list. They have selected products from iconic regions around the country along with a selection of new and emerging regions and of course a strong representation from local producers here in New South Wales.

Haymarket was originally the heart of Sydney's shopping and trade district with people from all over the world living and working in the area. Not too different from today really... with this in mind they have also selected a number of wines from the European regions where many of today's popular wine varieties originated from. We hope you enjoy!

Maybe just one glass...

We have an extensive range of wines available by the glass so that our guests have an opportunity to try as many of the different types on our list. Without needing to buy a whole bottle. The glass list is changed on a regular basis to allow guests the opportunity to sample the entire list.
